Acts 16 describes the story of missionaries, Paul and Silas, stripped, beaten and bound in prison. Paul and Silas have been placed with their feet in the stocks because the prison keeper has been charged to keep them safely. But in spite of all they have endured, their bodies wrecked and their hearts ravaged, at midnight Paul and Silas decide it is high time for a praise and worship session. They pray and sing praises to God. Suddenly an earthquake shakes the foundation of the prison, opening all the doors and breaking all the prisoners' bands! That's what praising God does! Praising God breaks strongholds.

I want to learn how to praise him anyway. Not only for what he does, but for who he is. For his promises. For his mercy and grace. For his presence in the midst of storms. The list of reasons to praise is endless! So this month's Bible reading challenge focus?

Praise Him Anyway!
